Strategy Description

The investment objective of the Mercator International Opportunity Fund is to generate long term capital gains by investing in a geographically diverse portfolio of foreign equities. Holdings are predominantly listed in the developed countries included in the Morgan Stanley EAFE Index.

Opportunistic and contrarian investing employing thematic and bottom-up research. Management believes that over the long term, stock prices follow business performance, so short term market fluctuations should be discounted. Broad themes--such as "the internet of things" or changing demographics--inform research focus and portfolio construction. The fund is looking for long term returns by letting its winners run. As a result, the portfolio turnover is very low.
